Summer activities

There are a lot of things to do in summer once the school ends. Some of them you have probably already done with your parents or friends, or you are planning to experience them this year. But if you need inspiration, here are some ideas for you. First of all, most of you have probably tried camping. But have you ever heard of glamping? This word combines these two concepts: glamorous and camping. This is a very popular trend for people who don't like being in nature and who like to be comfortable. You usually go to a campsite where there are tents with a lot of equipment and luxurious insides. These tents are also huge, and they often have a bed similar to the one you have at home. You can also find very nice kitchen equipment or you can even order some food. It is a very nice idea for people who want to experience some time in nature but are afraid of not being comfortable. But even if you prefer simple, traditional camping, there is one idea for you to try if you haven't already:

s'mores. This is a sweet snack which consists of three a marshmallow that is toasted over campfire. It's delicious, I promise!

Another thing you can try is some sport. Over the years, hiking has become quite popular, not only in English speaking countries but also all over the world. It doesn't mean you have to climb the highest mountain you can find. Just a nice hill will do. Ideally, you want to search for a place with a nice view that will make you happy. In any case, don't forget to bring some water and comfortable shoes, these are a must!

If you are a little bit more adventurous than that, you can even try some extreme sports. For example, windsurfing or bungee jumping. Windsurfing is the combination of sailing and surfing. There are many variations of this sport, but no matter what you do it is really nice to feel like you are almost flying on water but knowing you will never take off from the ground. Opposite to that, bungee jumping is a bit more extreme. You will need your parents to agree with it and you shouldn't be too young, but if you love adrenaline and want to scream your lungs out, it is definitely a fun idea.

Finally, how about reading a book? I know that it doesn't sound like the most exciting idea, but summer is the perfect time to grab a book and read without any distractions. You can even choose a longer book than you normally would. Or you can go to the library to look for a book about some summer adventure. Sky is the limit! Reading a book and getting immersed into the stories inside of it can sometimes be as fun as actually experiencing these things. Plus, books are a great way to relax and escape from the everyday world around you. In any case, no matter what you do, have fun and enjoy yourself!
